Teaching Focus

Immunization, Travel Medicine, Epidemiology

Research Interests and Experience:

Preventative Medicine
Immunization Practice
Pre-Travel Health Practice
Medication Errors in the Community Pharmacy
Community Pharmacy-based Patient Care Program

Research Focus

The goal of my research is to create a better understanding of the value of immunization and travel medicine and the contribution of pharmacists to these preventative health services; to explore the social and behavioral aspects of consumer and healthcare professional's decision making process and outcomes related primarily to immunizations and travel medicine. Research techniques include using focus groups and the modified Delphi technique to identify areas of discordant beliefs and areas of consensus to better guide population based studies. Online conditional logic based surveys, various population based public health models, including the Health Belief Model and Knowledge, Attitudes, Beliefs and Practices (KABP), are employed to explore problems in healthcare delivery or needs assessment planning for healthcare resource utilization. In addition, retrospective database mining is used primarily to validate social-behavioral findings or to conduct patient care program outcomes evaluations.
