CDL Medical & Self Certifying Verification Guide

SPECIAL NOTE: By selecting an INTRASTATE operation type, you are subject to the K restriction on your CDL. Only select INTRASTATE if you do not meet the Federal requirements for a CDL (under 21 or blind in one eye).

There are two differences between excepted and non-excepted types of operation. The excepted types of operation are defined in 49 CFR 390.3 (f).

If you operate a commercial motor vehicle (CMV) for any of the activities listed below a medical certificate is not required. You will need to self-certify to either excepted interstate or excepted intrastate.

- Custom Farm Operations
- Bee Keepers
- Federal, State, Municipal or Borough transportation and/or operation
- Occasional transport of personal property
- Transportation of human corpses or sick/injured persons
- Fire trucks and rescue vehicles
- CMVs used to transport between 9 and 15 passengers, including the driver
- CMVs used primarily in transportation of propane winter heating fuel
- Driver of migrant workers

If you operate a CMV outside of the excepted types of operation, you are considered non-excepted, and are required to have a valid medical examiners certificate.

Difference between interstate and intrastate

Interstate = If the vehicle or load (may be goods or passengers) originates in one state and is transported to or through another state, the operation would be considered "interstate commerce."

Intrastate = If the vehicle or load (may be goods or passengers) originates in Alaska and the operator does not transport the vehicle or load outside of Alaska, it is considered "intrastate commerce."

If you have any questions regarding the self-certification types or the requirements, please contact Anchorage Driver Services at (907) 269-3770 or via Email at DOA.DMV.ADS@Alaska.gov for assistance prior to submitting the form.

DEFINITIONS

Domicile: "domicile" means the true and permanent home of a person from which the person has no present intention of moving and to which the person intends to return whenever the person is away.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE means trade, traffic, or transportation in the United States—

- (1) Between a place in a State and a place outside of such State (including a place outside of the United States);
- (2) Between two places in a State through another State or a place outside of the United States; or
- (3) Between two places in a State as part of trade, traffic, or transportation originating or terminating outside the State or the United States.

Example: If the vehicle or load originates in one state and is transported to or through another state, the operation would be considered "interstate commerce".

Example: If the vehicle or load originates in one state and operator does not transport the vehicle or load outside of the original state, it is considered "intrastate commerce".
