THE RESUME

The purpose of a resume is to market yourself for the next position you desire. The resume should be short and concise, presenting an employer with information pertinent to the job announcement in a brief, easy-to read format. One page is usually sufficient for new college graduates with limited work histories, but experienced individuals may need two pages.

A variety of formats can be used for resumes. However, in our experience with university students and other job seekers, we have found that the chronological format generally works the most effectively. This approach operates on the assumption that your most recent experience is the most relevant. Consequently, information concerning your education and experience is presented in reverse date order. The information which follows details the elements that are typically included in a chronological resume.

THE BASIC ELEMENTS

There is no one correct way to write a resume. However, there are some basic elements you need to include in your resume:

- 1) Identifying Information--The very first information on your resume should be your name, address and phone number (and/or message phone number, if applicable), including both zip and area codes. You may also include a website address, if you have one. Your main objective is to get employers to remember you, so highlighting your name using bolding, caps or a larger font will make you more visible.
- 2) Career Objective--For application to a specific job, an objective is usually not necessary. An objective may be appropriate at a career fair or to designate specific skills/endorsements that you wish to use. It should be a very specific statement about the type of position you are seeking and/or the skills you wish to use. If you plan to explore a variety of different opportunities, you will probably be better off using your cover letter to explain the type of position you are seeking so that you can tailor your statement to the particular organization you are contacting.
- 3) Certification--This is the area separate from and above the Education section. It details the type of certificate (i.e.: Washington State Residency Certificate) and the date issued or anticipated. Endorsements are also included in this section.
- 4) Educational Background--With emphasis on the highest education level attained, list your college experience including name and location of institutions attended, degrees/certificates earned or to be granted, major, special coursework, and dates of completion. You may also want to list any outside training you have received (such as special workshops or seminars) which is pertinent to your career objectives. For new graduates this section is placed before the experience sections. As more experience is gained the education section may be moved farther down the page. When writing your resume you always want to “put your best foot forward” by arranging the information presented in order of importance.

- 5) Teaching Related Experience--List in reverse chronological order the experiences you have had which directly relate to teaching, working and/or volunteering with children. Include subheadings such as Teacher, Substitute Teacher, Student Teacher, Practica, Tutor and Camp Counselor. The experiences most directly relevant to the position for which you are applying should be emphasized. Typically, those would be student teaching and substituting for the entry level teacher and contracted experiences for veteran teachers.

In highlighting your experiences, include only the information that would be relevant to the position you seek. Be sure to use language which indicates you are current with curricular, instructional and philosophical trends in your field. At the same time, the resume should not appear verbose or full of clichés. Using brief examples is a way to build a positive image in the mind of the resume reader.

- 6) Other Experience--At this point, you will need to make a judgment call on how specifically you will list your current and former employment. For the candidate, Teaching Related Experience is often the strongest statement one can make. However, prospective employers can learn many positive things about a candidate from other employment as well. If you have been in the work force, you have no doubt gained a number of transferable skills which will assist you in the classroom. In addition, your work history before and during college may leave a positive impression of someone who is energetic, ambitious and willing to work hard to reach his/her goals.

This information will be listed as in the previous section with job title, employer, location and dates of employment followed by a brief description using active verbs of relevant skills utilized in performance of the position. It is not necessary to include all of your work experience. Unrelated, extremely dated employment or jobs of brief duration need not be included. Do not discount summer, part-time and volunteer positions, however. It may be appropriate for some candidates to simply list other experiences without bullet point descriptions if most of the relevant experience is teaching related.

- 7) Key Qualifications (Optional)--Alternate titles include Skills Summary, Strengths Profile or Summary of Qualifications. The idea here is to highlight your qualifications for the type of position you are seeking. Typically this section is arranged as a list of 6 to 8 bullet points listing skills, areas of expertise and/or personal characteristics, each described in just a few words. Every item included should relate in an obvious way to the job announcement or to the type of position you are seeking. The beauty of this section is that you can draw from the full range of your experiences to date--education, volunteer work, employment, campus activities, etc. Just be sure that the rest of your resume supports the claims you make here. This section may appear before the education section or before the relevant experience section or later in the resume depending on how important the information is (for instance, fluency in a foreign language or training in a highly desired area could be emphasized in this section).

- 8) Activities/Honors/Memberships (Optional)--Choose the heading that is most appropriate for your particular background. List academic honors, extracurricular activities and memberships in this section, placing a special emphasis on those things that relate closely to your career goals.
- 9) Community Activities (Optional)--Employers like to learn a little bit about the person behind the resume. Information about your hobbies and interests will provide some insight into your character and personality and may include pertinent information that would not appear anywhere else in your resume. Steer clear of information on things like age, marital status, height and weight. Under Affirmative Action/EEO guidelines, employers are not to use this type of information in their hiring procedures. As noted above, if you have gained significant experience from other activities, they may fit better in your earlier "Experience" section than here.

SAYING WHAT YOU MEAN AND MEANING WHAT YOU SAY

Once you know what information should be included in your resume and how to arrange it, you are ready to sit down and put the words on paper that will most effectively communicate to an employer what you have to offer. No small task! As with any piece of writing, you need to be as concise as possible and your choice of words is extremely important. Pronouns such as "I", "they" and "he" or "she" are never used, and articles are usually dropped (i.e. "a", "an", "the"). This will put the emphasis on your choice of verbs. Choose carefully! Where "attended" sounds weak and somewhat vague, "participated actively" sounds dynamic and results-oriented. Watch your use of adjectives and adverbs as well. "Responded promptly to customer inquiries" sounds better than just "responded." The action verbs and adjectives on the next pages will help you make the most appropriate word selections to put some punch in your resume. A worksheet to assist you in writing excellent experience bullet points is included. While it may feel uncomfortable to brag, this is a time when it's not only okay, but necessary, to toot your own horn, so go for it!

Translating Duties to Skills: Worksheet for Educators

Use the “What + formula”

For each job think: What did you do in this position?

Then elaborate: Why was the task important?

What was your impact within the district/organization?

How did you perform your duties?

What skills did you use or develop?

Create bullet points that begin with a strong verb and emphasize skills or qualities required in the next job you seek!

Examples:

- Assisted a sixth grade class with physical science becomes:
What + Skills Developed: Mentored sixth grade students in physical science, demonstrating ability to develop effective learning relationships with multiple age levels
- Planned and taught small group lessons with ELL students becomes:
What + How and Impact: Planned and taught small group lessons with ELL students, incorporating cultural knowledge to engage learners
- Answered phones for busy office becomes:
Importance + What: Maintained organized and efficient work environment, answering phones for busy office

PUTTING IT ALL TOGETHER

There are a number of ways to have your resume put into final form. Optimal Resume is available on the Career Services Center Website: <https://www.optimalresume.com/>. This tool allows the resume to be stored on an outside server and greatly simplifies resume building.

Regardless of which production method you choose, the same basic fundamentals apply:

- Balance the material on the page so that the total effect is pleasing to the eye and easy to read. Leave generous margins (one inch on top and bottom, $\frac{3}{4}$ to one inch on sides) so the page doesn't look crowded and use headings to help organize the information in a meaningful way.
- Be consistent in the type of headings (i.e., emphasisers) you use. Don't use caps or bolding in one section and underlining in another.
- Avoid slang, jargon, acronyms and abbreviations (except for states which can be abbreviated using the standard two-letter zip designations like WA for Washington).
- Edit your resume several times to improve word choice and eliminate redundancy. A synonym dictionary or thesaurus can help you here.

Use a dictionary and remember that spell checkers don't always catch every error. Resumes with misspellings and typos are often tossed out, regardless of the candidate's qualifications.

Proofread, proofread, and proofread! In fact, it's a good idea to have someone else proofread your resume for you because it's often very hard to see your own mistakes.

- Avoid flashy or odd-size paper. Use 8 1/2" x 11" paper. Unusual colors and size may attract negative attention. Also, resumes are often scanned for several people to review. Choose a color that will scan well. Colors other than white, when scanned, are often grayer and harder to read than white.

Getting Started on Optimal Resume!

1. From the home page at www.wvu.edu/careers/, select the “Build a Resume On-line” link in the lower center of the page.
2. The Optimal Resume Log-in page will appear with a sign-in area for established users and a link for new users to “Create an Account” on the top right.
3. Use your Western Washington University e-mail address to start an account.
4. Once the account information page appears, enter the e-mail and address that you wish to appear on your resume (your e-mail address can be changed at this point to a non-WWU account in order to maintain an account after graduation).
5. Ensure that the information entered on this page is accurate and that you update it occasionally, as this tool is used for user data and by employers searching for students with certain degrees or skills.
6. Once this form is completed, you will proceed to the main Optimal Resume page. To begin a resume, select “Create New Resume”.
7. The resume can be built from Resume Samples, Section Sets, or from Scratch. The first two options have formatting built into them, so are the easiest to begin with.
8. Examples and Samples can be viewed from the Section Sets page, along with other helpful tools.
9. The “Style Resume” tab allows for countless modifications and revisions eliminating the need to modify in Word. This feature ensures you the potential to create a professional resume that represents your unique needs!
10. Please note, under Tools, a link to Explore Careers which will take you to the Occupational Information Network (O*Net). This will assist you in building skills and knowledge into your resume that are in demand in your desired profession.
11. The Optimal Resume Tool includes the options to create a Portfolio with a website, perform a skills assessment and practice interviewing skills. All of these choices, along with the resume builder, are provided free of charge!

EDUCATION RESUME CHECKLIST

GENERAL: The biggest difference between a business resume and a teaching resume is the Certification heading and information at the top of the resume and the focus on teaching and related experiences.

FIVE SECOND REVIEW: Is your resume inviting or scary?

- o It is neat, clean and pleasing to the eye, on nice paper—white or neutral light shade
- o White space—not too much or too little; even margins—not too narrow or too wide

FIVE MINUTE REVIEW: Does the information you included invite the reader to learn more?

OVERALL:

- o Choice of format: easy to read with consistent headings, bold use, punctuation, spacing
- o 1 inch margins on top, bottom and sides; left/right margins can be as small as ¾ inch
- o 11 to 12 point type—Arial or other sans serif type is clearest for smaller than 12 point
- o Typestyle is consistent and not mixed with another; no artwork, fancy type or colored ink
- o No errors or misspellings: be sure to proofread thoroughly
- o 1 page is not always the rule: sometimes more detail is good—make it relevant

HEADINGS:

- o Certification, Education, and Relevant Teaching Experience (or similar, in order)
- o Other possible headings of: Honors, Awards, Affiliations, Key Qualifications, Multicultural Experience or Other Work Experience (headings that market YOU!)
- o In general, no references or objectives on page (exception might be for career fair)

CONTENT:

Include information on areas of interest to school districts such as languages, diversity experience, flexibility, classroom management, use of assessment to inform instruction, Common Core and other standards, teamwork, and communication with parents, co-workers and students—use job announcement as guide

- o Begin with verb, present tense for now, or past tense (“I” is implied)
- o Include information relevant to position that highlights skills you have: demonstrate proficiency with specific information
- o Make it easy for the employer to see how you meet the specific job qualifications by describing your experience, skills and knowledge related to the job
- o Include unpaid & paid volunteer, internship and classroom experiences
- o Include details that make you stand out from other applicants
- o Avoid using personal pronouns & eliminate articles (“a”, “an” & “the”)
- o Avoid jargon & abbreviations (exception states) not commonly understood

KEYWORDS & PHRASES:

Writing an Effective Cover Letter or Letter of Application

A cover letter is your chance to make a good first impression. Because it accompanies your resume and application to the school district or educational institution, it is often the first opportunity to introduce yourself as well as an indication of your written communication skills.

Having put a lot of hard work into a resume you want to make sure that the prospective employer reads it carefully. A cover letter is a marketing tool that you develop to encourage employers to study your resume and give you serious consideration as a candidate. Together, they should stimulate the employer to want to know more about you through an interview.

Just like the resume, the cover letter should be tailored to the specific position about which you are inquiring or for which you are applying. Never send a form letter. Certainly there will be some common things you mention in each letter, but the wise cover letter writer will personalize it as much as possible.

In general, a professional cover letter is:

1. Formal and businesslike
2. Neat
3. Short (3 or 4 paragraphs on one page)
4. Typed or computer generated
5. Errorless (spelling, grammar, punctuation)
6. On good quality bond paper or in PDF form for electronic applications, if able, ensuring that your format will remain consistent
7. Addressed to a specific person, whenever possible

Two basic uses for cover letters:

1. Letter of Inquiry - when you have an interest in a school district but are not aware whether an opening exists for which you are qualified. Many districts and educational institutions will then note your interest and place your letter (and resume and application) in their systems for future consideration when openings arise.
2. Letter of Application or Cover Letter- when there is a specific opening for which you are qualified and wish to apply.

COVER LETTER CHECKLIST

Five Second Review: Give it the once-over; is your cover letter:

- Free of typos and spelling errors?
- Proofread by someone for grammatical and punctuation errors?
- Typed in the same font and on same color paper as your resume?
- Organized and prioritized?
- Full of action verbs describing experience, skills, and knowledge?
- Specifically addressing the person in charge of hiring for the job, using a colon or comma after the person's name?
- Signed personally by you in blue or black ink?

Fifteen Minute Review: After further reflection, does your cover letter:

- State specifically the job title for which you are applying?
- State specifically how you found out about the job posting?
- Specifically address qualifications listed in the job announcement or list any qualifications you have if this is a letter of inquiry?
- Emphasize internships, relevant job experience, relevant coursework, or professional society activities?
- Show your enthusiasm in wanting the position for which you are applying?
- Stay away from statements such as "I feel", "I think", and "I believe"?
- Describe your personal attributes that would relate to company culture or how you would fit in the organization?
- Address any names of people who referred you?
- Have the appropriate number of paragraphs (3-5)?
- State interest in scheduling an interview with a company representative?
- Provide your contact information, i.e., phone and email?
- Thank the employer for his/her time and consideration.

Dear Mr./Ms./Dr. _____:

Opening Paragraph. Attract attention. Clearly state the reason for writing, naming the position or type of work for which you are applying. Identify how you heard of the opening or how the employer's name was obtained (i.e., the Career Services Center informed me of your opening or Professor Smith in the Technology Department at Western Washington University recommended that I contact you.)
[1 space]

Second Paragraph. State your reason for writing this particular employer. Specify concrete reasons for the type of work you desire. Highlight: your skills; your goals; and/or how your education, experiences and other qualifications support your capacity to succeed in this job (in this organization.) "Show your Stuff!" Describe what you can do for the employer rather than what the employer can do for you. Significant accomplishments can be noted, but the resume should not be repeated any more than absolutely necessary. Basically, you are emphasizing your key qualifications -- selling yourself -- elaborating on background areas which will attract the employer for the specific career field or job you want.

Closing Paragraph. Restate your interest by indicating your availability for a personal interview. Either suggest a time or state your willingness to come at the convenience of the individual employer. End on a strong note. Indicate your resume is enclosed (and your placement file has been forwarded-if appropriate).

Dear Dr. Smith:

This is an application for job number 2016-2, Language Arts Teacher. As a recent graduate from Western Washington University, I have my Masters in Teaching with an endorsement in English-Language Arts. I am working on my endorsement in Spanish and plan to have that completed by December of this year. My ability to build positive relationships with students and peers, variety of teaching experiences and recent coursework in curriculum and instructional strategies, integration and writing across curricula will enable me to be a great asset to the Issaquah School District.

During my placement as a student teacher at Ingraham High School in Seattle, I learned and applied a broad range of teaching strategies. For example, I constructed my lesson plans by first consulting the Common Core Standards for clear objectives and learning goals. Every student's experience was enriched by differentiating lessons for learning styles, IEPs, 504s, gifted/talented abilities, as well as cultural and socio-economic needs. I incorporated parent volunteers into classroom activities whenever possible and integrated technology to engage learners. I implemented a variety of assessments to ensure evidence of successful learning throughout each unit. Above all, I encouraged students to assume a very active responsibility for their own learning. My students enthusiastically made strategic choices, reflected on their learning processes, collaborated often, and submitted constant input. Every one of my students knew what we were learning, why we were learning it, and how it applied to the world beyond the classroom.

As part of my student teaching and practica experiences, I also had the opportunity to work closely with both departmental and building wide teams. As a student teacher, I collaborated with colleagues to develop goals that were to be followed for the remainder of the school year. I also actively participated in extra-curricular activities and volunteered for extra duties demonstrating an enthusiasm and true desire to be part of the high school team.

My experiences beyond graduate school have enhanced my success as an educator. My Spanish speaking ability and my experiences studying abroad have proven to be an asset both in the classroom and on campus. I have a deeper understanding of what diversity means through my travels and have been able to build productive and valuable relationships with diverse students and peers. Additionally, my work as a Theme Reader with in the Northshore School district has resulted in valuable insight on the success of lessons based on analysis found in the student essays that I appraised, and is an indicator of my commitment to continued learning and growth.

I truly believe that we are all lifelong learners and would love the opportunity to share this belief with the students of the Issaquah School District. I hope to soon discuss with you how my experience and abilities can best meet the goals of your district. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Caleb I. Teach
