

as landen is holding her fathers flag at his grave she decides that she has to follow her fathers foot steps and join the army.(symbolism in flag) going into the army landen thought it would be a breeze since she was athletic and very intelligent but it was the very exact opposite of being a "breeze" but throughout the intense required basic training she makes 2 friends.johnny and liz(irony) after completing their ridiculously long and hard training it was now time to conduct a rescue medic mission they were given directions to get in, help the soldiers and get out.simple.

when johnny, liz and landen arrive to the medical tent no one is there.they look all around still no one.they walk back out the door and around the tent there they find two soldiers bleeding out johnny drags them both in an sits them down so they can work on them they lost one of the soldiers but landen was not about to let the last one go.all of a sudden 2 enemy soldiers barge in and tell liz and jonny to leave and so they do but they also tell landen to let the soldier die or she will be killed but she can't just let go.(allusion to grey's anatomy when Derek was on the operating table) as landen keeps working on the soldier the enemy men start towards her but out of no where johnny and liz come back in with weapons and defend landen until she finishes, showing that hard work and teamwork put together gets things done (theme)
