

Christmas Product Safety Survey 2014

This year's product safety survey saw NSW Fair Trading inspect 738 business premises across NSW and examine 17,822 products. This includes 14,204 products designed for children under 36 months of age. The following 95 dangerous children's toys were found to be non-compliant during this year's annual children's toy survey. The 95 non-compliant children's products have now been removed from store shelves in the lead-up to Christmas 2014.

Fair Trading investigators found the dangerous items on sale across the state during the annual Christmas product safety survey in October. All the unsafe toys detected during the 2014 Christmas product survey have been removed from sale.

The 95 children's toys that failed were:

Toys that are capable of firing any projectile must comply with AS/NZS ISO 8124.1:2002 Safety of Toys Part 1: Safety aspects related to mechanical and physical properties. The standard requires projectile toys to pass a kinetic energy test, have a protective tip on the projectiles that does not become detached, and to ensure that projectiles do not pose choking or inhalation hazards. In addition, the Standard restricts the supply of projectile toys that are capable of discharging any improvised projectiles such as nails or coins.

Aquatic toys 4

Consumer Protection Notice No. 2 of 2009 Consumer Product Safety Standard for Aquatic Toys

Children's aquatic toys must comply with certain provisions of AS/NZS ISO 8124.1:2002 Safety of toys Part 1: Safety aspects related to mechanical and physical properties with variations. The Australian Standard specifies labelling for aquatic toys for children under 14 years of age to minimise the risk of drowning.
