

Expository Essay - Social Media

Read the point of view in the box below:

Writer Saba Anees says, "Twitter is nothing out of the ordinary-- it's like Facebook, without the comments and applications. They must be doing something right in order to gain 1.2 million users in the last year, but I have yet to see legitimate reasons as to how it has become addictive. There is no substance to Twitter, which is why it is so ridiculous to believe people can get addicted. Before jumping the bandwagaon and publishing your every step on Twitter, think again--do people really need to know how bored you are with your life?"

Social networks like Facebook and Twitter now have hundreds of millions of users each. Think carefully about this information.
